"All That Jazz" The Wheeling Symphony Returns

by David Graham

The Wheeling Symphony Orchestra once again returns to Glenville State College! The orchestra opens its second season at GSC at 7 p.m. this Friday in the Fine Arts Auditorium. Oliver Lake, an acclaimed composer and jazz saxophonist, will accompany the orchestra as a guest artist while the orchestra performs the program "All That Jazz" under the musical direction of West Virginia First Lady Rachael Worby.

A personal composition written by Lake, specifically for the Wheeling Symphony, entitled "Cross Stitch" will be performed. Lake himself will be the soloist in the composition.

Other compositions that are to be performed are: Darius Milhaud's "Creation of the World," Aaron Copland's "Music for the Theater," Leonard Bernstein's "Three Dancers from Fancy Free" and the evening will close with George Gershwin's "An American in Paris."

About the program the symphony will be playing, Rachel Worby said, "The music exposes the symphony to the world of jazz. The music introduces different harmonies to the orchestra, as well as different instruments such as the saxophone, piano, and drum set."

Tickets for the concert are required. For all GSC and public school students, tickets are $2. For others the cost will be $10. The cost of this concert is paid in part by Glenville State College student fees and by support of the Claude Worthington Benedum Foundation Outreach Fund of the Wheeling Symphony, the N.E.H. Challenge Program, generous grants from the West Virginia Commission of the Arts, The National Endowment for the Arts, and the Mid-Atlantic Arts Foundation.

Rachel Worby appreciates the support and outreach given by the GSC community and noted, "It is always exciting to play in Glenville, I'm looking forward to it."

COLLEGE LIFE

By Chris Farrar

National Student News Service, 1994

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

In my capacity as president of the National Motorists Association, I have daily exposure to the nation's political antics. While my official purview is somewhat narrow (driving, automotive and highway issues), the trends cut across a wide range of topics.

One such trend is the treating of young adults as second class citizens.

We see laws whether in place or proposed that categorize young adults as "drunk drivers" if they have any trace of alcohol in their blood. The buzz words are "zero tolerance."

A single beer at a meal with family or friends subjects a 20-year old adult to large fines, possible incarceration, loss of driver's license, perennial auto insurance surcharges, and a permanent conviction record that can harm future employment opportunities. Does this sound fair and balanced to you?

The neo-prohibitionists say "if you don't want the problem, don't drink the beer." This ignores the reality of human history and human nature. However, this is not the disease that concerns me, it's just a symptom.

During the Vietnam War, the college-age generation had a saying, "Don't trust anybody over the age of 30." That very same generation had set out to prove the veracity of their chant. There is no reservation, whatsoever, on the part of the "baby boomers" to stick it to younger generations.

My question is, who has stolen the tongues, the resolve, and the courage of today's college students? Why aren't you protesting the discriminatory legislation, the financial exploitation, and the politically correct bilge being foisted on young adults? I'm not talking about taking on noble causes, I'm talking about your own welfare, your own self-interest.

Perhaps you think you can hold your breath for three years and be home free when you hit 21. Maybe, but that's a "hellava" way to spend some of the best years of your life, and not much of a legacy to leave to those who follow.

Take my word for it, the "illegitimis" will get you down, if you don't fight back.

Sincerely,

James J. Baxter

Scratching the Surface

by Lisa Hayes

One often hears on this campus, "There's nothing to do," as an explanation as to why Glenville State is a "suitcase college." Even the people who do not pack up their suitcases on Friday often wish there was more to do than to drive to Wal-Mart or to the mall. Well, actually, there is, and it is a cultural experience.

In the same amount of time it takes to drive to the nearest mall, you can drive to the state capitol and witness National Public Radio's "Mountain Stage" with Larry Groce. Some of you may be familiar with this show which airs Sunday afternoons at 3 p.m. But how many of you have driven down to see the show live, up close and personal? For a slim six bucks, you can enjoy a two-hour live show of easy-listening music.

This past Sunday, I made the trip to Charleston to see the show for the first time. We made the trip that day specifically to see Gilmer County's main music man Mike Morningstar. Other than that, I had no idea what to expect. Little did I know what an enjoyable, relaxing experience it would be.

All in all, there were six different performers in addition to Larry Groce, the host and the Mountain Stage Band. All of the men were excellent musicians. In addition to West Virginia's own Mike Morningstar, there was a singer/songwriter from Georgia, an expressionist from New York City, an American Indian singer/songwriter from a reservation in Wyoming, and an excellent blues man who just finished a European tour. What talent!

Mountain Stage hosts different musicians every week, from all over the country. If you are not one of those people who packs up and runs away every weekend, take a trip some Sunday to visit Mountain Stage at the capitol. It is definitely something to experience.

The Non-Traditional Viewpoint

by J.B. Parker

The seventies were a time of great social activism. The eighties were a time of internal activism. The nineties, as of present, are undefined. We have forgotten, or at least disregarded, one of the best tools of change available to us, that is the art of civil disobedience.

I can remember various protesting activities of the seventies, whether the protesting changed the result of an action is not relevant. The relevancy is that we were united for a purpose. The cause we were involved in was more important than any one person involved in the cause.

We view problems today with a fatalistic outlook. We feel that the people in authority are immune to change, or that our opinions are not legitimate.

We can affect change in our society if we are willing to become part of a cause, unite, as a group, to bring about change.

I have three children, Joel, Jordan, and Jaime. My kids have learned they can accomplish their goals much easier if they cooperate. They unite against authority, their parents, to achieve their goals. Their goals are not grand on the social scale, but their goals are grand to watch. They will conspire to gain: a certain movie, eat at a certain restaurant, or a gift during shopping pilgrimages. My wife, Mary Jane, and I are not oblivious to what they are doing, quite the opposite. But we allow them to decide their fate, to a certain extent. If we are not satisfied with conditions in our society then we have the ability to affect change.

We can perform certain acts of civil disobedience that will bring about change, but we cannot let our vision become clouded. A prime example of a group's vision becoming clouded is Operation Rescue.

Whether we deem a cause noble or not does not give us the right to take civil disobedience to an extreme, such as the murder of Dr. David Gunn. The government of the United States allows us to control our destiny, to a certain extent. We have to make sure the decisions we make are really the decisions we are going to live by.

A good laugh is sunshine in a house.

Handicapped Accessibility A Campus Wide Problem

by Wade Samples

Picture this: it's seven o'clock in the morning, your alarm's going off, and in less than an hour you have to trudge all the way up to the third floor of the Science Hall for some science class that you should never have taken. Not only that, but you have to carry twenty-five pounds worth of books, twelve of which are for the nine o'clock history class on the second floor of the Administration Building that you know you shouldn't have taken either. Just thinking about all of those stairs is enough to make you sick. Now imagine if you were on crutches. Or in a wheelchair.

Granted, this isn't a problem that many students at Glenville State have, but for those who do, it is a serious consideration.

Accessibility to most buildings here at GSC is limited to the first floor (such as the Administration Building and Science Hall) while others (the Fine Arts Building and the library) are fully accessible. Part of the problem is, of course, funding.

"We just sent plans to the architect for a ramp leading into the business division of Louis Bennett Hall," said Bruce Hathaway, director of the physical plant, "and it should be finished by August. We also have plans to build an elevator in the office tower of LBH, but those won't be acted upon until next year. Obviously, the administration is very concerned about this issue, and we have several tentative plans for other buildings. Unfortunately, we don't have the funding right now to act upon them, and we are uncertain as to when the money will be made available."

Clearly, more needs to be done to alleviate this campus to a "handicapped friendly environment," and everyone seems to agree on this point. But, as Hathaway said, there simply isn't the money in the budget to do it right now. Also, the fact that the campus sits on the side of a mountain doesn't really help either.

So for the present, all that we can do is continue trudging our way up and down stairs, and lend a hand to our fellow students who can't follow our lead.

Belmear Speaks on Black History Month

by Craig Mills

"It's a crime that we have to have Black History Month. There may be a time when we will not have to have it, but it probably won't be in my lifetime."

Michael Belmear spoke to GSC students in the ballroom on March 1, as a part of Black History Month.

Mr. Belmear is the assistant vice-president of academic affairs at Fairmont State College. The topic of his speech was "Why have Black History Month?"

Mr. Belmear discussed personal barriers, white and black stereotypes, and the importance of appreciating cultural differences. He related many professional and personal experiences and fielded questions from students.

Dr. Al Billips remarked, "I've known Michael for several years. He breaks down barriers of fear by relating to the common denominator of all people, which is love."

GSC senior Kathy Szeliga adds, "I thought Michael Belmear's conversation on Black History Month was very inspirational and thought provoking. He spoke from the heart and made it more realistic by using his past experiences."

McMillion Reflects Time at NCC

by Susan Hutchinson

Ms. Angie McMillion, administrative aid at the Nicholas County Center of Glenville State, says with a smile, "I'm kind of everything to everybody. My responsibilities include admissions, advising, scheduling, working with all the instructors, getting books the instructors need, payroll, public relations and being a cashier."

And now, after seven years of working at the Nicholas County extension, McMillion is pursuing a career advancement.

Behind her composed appearance, the exasperating schedule Ms. McMillion juggles is not evident. Besides her full-time employment as an administrative aid, the Nicholas County native is also a mother of two, and a junior in college, finishing her Board of Regent's degree.

"Hopefully I will graduate in May, and start on my masters in the fall," the energetic McMillion replied as she crossed her fingers.

Ms. McMillion has been employed at the Nicholas County Center since March of 1987, three months after the center's original opening.

At that time, Ms. McMillion had the opportunity of working under the direction of Mr. Joe Hickman, who recently retired in June of 1993.

"Mr. Hickman deserves a lot of appreciation and praise for all the hard work and dedication he put forth in developing the center. He was in on the 'groundwork' and his dedication for the students and county was always number one with him."

During the past seven years, McMillion has enjoyed watching the center expand both in student enrollment, from 250 to 600 students today, and in the number of classes the college and center has to offer. She is optimistic that the center will continue to grow under the new direction of Bob Bailey.

The most noticeable difference McMillion points out, is the switch in center enrollment from a dominant non-traditional enrollment to a higher percentage of traditional students.

To what does Ms. McMillion attribute most to the success of the center? "It is a lot of things, but most definitely I would have to attribute much of the success to the outstanding adjunct faculty members that teach here at the center. They are really concerned about the students and the county. They realize the long term benefits of education and want to better their students lives."

"Another plus for the center is the business department. The instructors are actual business people who bring a special expertise to the classroom." McMillion continued.

As for enhancement at the center, McMillion would like to see more outreach to the community.

"Education is an enrichment. I would like the community to become more aware of the basic courses at the center which could enrich their everyday life, such as computer class. Nothing is certain in life, and the more educational background a person possesses, the better the chances are of facing the ever-changing facets of life," she added.

McMillion's response to the last question expressed her deep concern and dedication to the students and community, "We need to make the economy better for the state so that those students who have worked so hard and so long to acquire an education will be able to find employment within the state if they choose to do so."

Shortly after this article was started, it became known that McMillion would be leaving the center to pursue a career advancement. The faculty and students of NCC will miss Ms. McMillion, but wish her the best.

News in a Minute

by Dave Trippett

A few events have taken place in the last week that are worth noting.

■ The West Virginia State Senate passed a bill authorizing law enforcement officials to arrest domestic violence offenders based on probable cause.

■ Middle East peace talks are on what could be terminal hold. This stems from the massacre of 67 innocent civilians in Palestine. The shooting was done by an American-born immigrant.

■ The Brady Law went into effect. A five-day waiting period to buy a gun and more paperwork.

■ In Ice-Gate Tonya Harding did not win the gold as she has told the media several times in the past few weeks. Nancy Kerrigan made us proud with a silver, as has the rest of the U.S. Olympic team including: Tommy Moe, gold in skiing; Dan Jansen, gold in speed skating; Kathy Turner, gold in speed skating; Bonnie Blair, gold in speed skating; and others.

■ Rusty Wallace put a Ford in the winners circle at the speedway in Rockingham, North Carolina. That's one win for General Motors and one win for Ford in the race for the Manufacturer's Cup.

Faculty Spotlight: A Real Piano Man

by David Graham

Involved with music at GSC? If so, then you will probably run into John Walkup.

Mr. Walkup, originally from Fayetteville, is in charge of freshman music theory and piano lab as well as all piano lessons for GSC students. In addition to the myriad of responsibilities he has in the music department he also teaches private lessons for members of the community, plus accompanying student and faculty recitals. However, when approached about his work load he truly shows his love for his craft by saying, "Music is an intrinsic part of my life. It is what I want to do and it's what I worked for."

John Walkup graduated from Glenville State College in 1984 and then he went on to receive his masters in piano from the University of Illinois in August 1991. He has come a long way since starting piano lessons when he was in the fourth grade. Although, Mr. Walkup is by no means putting his personal piano skills on hiatus while he is teaching. He still takes lessons from his mentor Mr. Gerald Snyder periodically. "I think it is important to have a critical ear around no matter how advanced you are."

Despite his hectic schedule, Mr. Walkup finds time to make room for his special interests which consists of reading and TV.

He has a special fascination about the subject of the assassination of President Kennedy and devotes much time to the study of the topic. And yes, he believes there was only one gunman. On the lighter side Mr. Walkup won't pass up any episode of "Seinfeld," "The Andy Griffith Show," or "Perry Mason." Even though he works with music everyday, he still manages to listen to all types and varieties of music at home. His favorites are jazz, Electric Light Orchestra, standards by American greats such as Cole Porter and Irving Berlin, and of course all classical music. In regards to music he simply says, "There's not much I don't like."

John Mark Walkup takes his music seriously. Even in the summer he teaches at a piano camp for teen-agers at the University of Illinois. And as if that was not enough, he plans to perform a full recital in the fall consisting of "maybe some Brahms and Haydn." John Mark Walkup is a real piano man.

In your opinion, do you feel former NBA star Michael Jordan will be able to make it in Major League Baseball? Why?

NAME: Julie Ann Hall

RANK: Freshman

MAJOR: Elementary Education

HOMETOWN: Weston

ANSWER: "Yes. I think he is an excellent athlete, and if he puts his mind to it, he can definitely succeed in Major League Baseball."

NAME: Carla Rae Williams

RANK: Freshman

MAJOR: Nursing

HOMETOWN: Grantsville

ANSWER: "Yes. He is already a respected sports figure."

NAME: Mark Loudin

RANK: P.R. Director

HOMETOWN: Kent, Ohio

ANSWER: "No, Michael hasn't seen major league pitching in his entire life and he hasn't played for 15 years (senior year of high school). Although according to reports, Michael could be a fair defensive outfielder in the minors."

NAME: Tim Lynch

RANK: Junior

MAJOR: Behavioral Science

HOMETOWN: Stafford, VA

ANSWER: "No, it takes years to learn how to hit a baseball, not six months. If he goes to the minors first and works his way up, then more power to him."

Literary Society to Meet in March

by Monica Ann Null

According to Mr. Wayne D. deRossett, co-advisor of the literary society at Glenville State College, the March meeting of the society will be held on March 24, at 4:15 p.m. The novel that will be discussed is Winesburg Ohio, written by Sherwood Anderson.

Started in the early 1960's by Dr. Epsy Miller (former chair of the English division), the society has become an existent part of GSC. Now under the supervision of co-advisors Wayne deRossett and Nancy E. Zane, the society meets regularly. Meetings are generally held once a month on a Thursday afternoon. This semester the society plans to meet a total of three times.

The literary society is intended for students to meet and discuss in great detail a particular work of contemporary literature in the form of a novel, a poem, or a play. The literature is chosen and read before the group meets. Each member has a choice as to which piece of literature will be discussed.

Students may enroll in this group to receive an hour credit. Since the discussion is conducted in an open format, no letter grades will be awarded.

The student may earn extra credit for participating regularly at each of the meetings. If the student does not provide adequate input during these discussions, no credit will be given. The course may be repeated for a total of three hours of credit.

The society has reviewed the works of authors from Ray Bradbury to Jane Austin, and poets such as Dylan Thomas. Controversial books as well as the issue of censorship are popular items for discussion. Elements such as character importance, setting, theme, symbolism, and more are brought to the attention of the group so that Controversial and banned books being read by the literary society.

the literary work may be analyzed.

According to deRossett, the society, "allows people to come to appreciate good literature. Students realize they can read and talk about it in an intellectual and enjoyable way." He added, "It makes reading fun!"

Currently the society has around twenty members. The size of the group allows more ideas to be introduced. Students are urged to "drop in on a particular meeting and see what it (the society) is all about." The book of discussion for April 14 is Forever by Judy Blume.

Salem Shines at WVIAC Tourney

by Sean McAndrews

I have chided all year about the academically-challenged Tigers, but these basketball games are played in a gymnasium, not a classroom, where their athletic ability shines. Salem-Teikyo was the preseason favorite to win both the regular season and WVIAC Tournament title. The Tigers would not let anyone down, beating their three opponents by an average of 18 points, and held them to a shooting average of under 35 percent.

The victimization started with Glenville, followed by the Alderson-Broadbudd Battlers, and then the finals against the Wheeling Jesuit Cardinals. The Glenville and A-B games were similar, in that the games were close up the 4-minute mark in the second half. That is when poor shooting and tenacious Tiger fast-breaks would put the games out of reach with 22 point wins.

The Pioneers ran into the shooting, dunking, juggling of the ball that is Salem-Teikyo in the quarter-finals of the WVIAC Tournament.

The Pioneers had lost to the Tigers twice during the regular season by nine and 10 points in heated physical contests.

The Pioneers came out a-firing on the smooth outside shooting of Steve Shuff for 14 points and the tough post play of Jeff Brockell for six points. At the half, they were only to trail Salem by five, with a score of 33-28.

The Pioneers would get as close as four and five points during the second half before a late Salem-Teikyo run at the 3:46 mark would take the lead up to 22 points. The final score would be 77-55, Salem-Teikyo.

The Pioneers ended the season at 15-11 overall, 11-10 in the conference. The Pioneers were led in scoring by Steve Shuff with 21 points, Bruce Boldley with 14 points, and Jeff Brockell with eight points.

The championship game for Salem-Teikyo, however, would be different, as Wheeling Jesuit would lead at half-time on the shooting of Scott Bittner and Trey McDonald. However, Salem-Teikyo's size, strength and fast-break ability would wear down the Cardinals. Salem was able to hold on for a victory of six points.

The All-Tournament team was composed of Tigers Willie Coleman, Antoine Hatcher and Paul Johnson; Cardinal Scott Bittner, Battler Tony Lucas; West Liberty Hilltopper Eric Bouvard; and Steve Shuff of the Pioneers.

Tournament MVP was Paul Johnson of the champion Tigers.

The Tigers now wait for the NAIA to seed them as they are the sixth ranked team in the country, and travel to Tulsa to battle for the NAIA title.

Ladies End Season in OT

by Sean Davis

The GSC women's basketball team season came to an abrupt stop, as they were beat in the first round of the WVIAC Tournament. The loss came at the hands of Davis and Elkins College, by a final score of 64-58 in overtime at the Charleston Civic Center.

The Lady Pioneers led 51-48 with six seconds left in regulation following two free throws by Jodi Hill. But, Davis and Elkins' Michelle Aikens hit a three-pointer as time expired to send the game into overtime.

Then Davis and Elkins turned up the heat, as the Lady Senators outscored GSC 13-7 in overtime, to put the win by six.

The leading scorer for the Lady Pioneers was freshman Lori Charnoplosky with 18 points. Senior forward Lauri Slaughter scored 15 points and pounded the glass for a game-high 14 rebounds.

Junior guard Christy Fitzwater added in 11 points, eight rebounds and five assists, while senior June Shriver added in 10 points.

The Lady Pioneers finished the year with a 12-14 overall record, 9-12 WVIAC.

Test Your Tabloid IQ

by David Graham

While standing in the check out line of a local grocery store I noticed the tabloid rack. Oh, the tabloid rack. Journalism at its finest. Since I figured I will probably end up working for one of those "news" magazines in a few years I thought I should buy them and familiarize myself with them. A little "homework" before my job interview.

I could not stop laughing at the sight of some of these articles. Oh, the humanity! Do people read this stuff I ask myself. Do they know it? Below I have created a little test taken from the headlines from recent tabloids. If you know the answers, don't tell anyone!

Finish the sentence:

1. Man makes sandals out of his
 - a) own hair.
 - b) neighbors garbage.
 - c) own skin.

2. Top experts have proof that migraine headaches are caused by
 - a) college food.
 - b) evil demons inside your head.
 - c) English 101.

3. California preacher warns that the world will end
 - a) September 27, 1994.
 - b) too late, it already did.
 - c) the day David Letterman retires.

4. The world's biggest baby is
 - a) 303 pounds.
 - b) a chain smoker.
 - c) is a Japanese Sumo-wrestler.

5. Male escort makes a whopping $100,000 a year by
 - a) taking men shopping.
 - b) taking Aerosmith's groupies shopping in the Charleston Mall.
 - c) taking women shopping.

6. Dolphin with human arms
 - a) graduates from GSC.
 - b) loses limb.
 - c) wins the Masters golf tournament.

7. Amazing woman has lived for 19 years without food or drink
 - a) and boy does she want a Big Mac and fries.
 - b) people think she is a space alien.
 - c) and she has gained 59 pounds.

8. Rabbi is a clergyman by day and a
 - a) professional comic by night.
 - b) star of the popular TV show, 90210, by night.
 - c) GSC teacher by night.

9. How I used witchcraft to
 - a) pass piano proficiency.
 - b) get ahead at work.
 - c) make Jay Leno go away.

10. Elvis is alive and he's
 - a) eating me out of house and home.
 - b) attending classes at GSC.
 - c) violent.

ANSWERS:

10. C
9. B
8. A
7. C
6. B
5. C
4. C
3. A
2. B
1. C

SCORING:

Nancy Wemm's Top Ten Female Actors

You asked me to name my top ten favorite actresses, (by the way, the PC term is female actors). My first thought was "no, problem." Then I started listing those actors who I felt really moved me by their performances. I ended up with twentysome. So I tried to narrow it down by thinking about their latest performances, because an actor is only as good as their last role. But then that left out some people who throughout their whole career created honest, believable characters. So in no particular order...

- Jane Alexander (You may remember her from "Kramer vs. Kramer" or "Franklin and Eleanor")
- Mary Steenburgen
- Meryl Streep (Who I currently believe to be the best)
- Colleen Dewhurst
- Cissy Spacek
- Demi Moore
- Katharine Hepburn ("Lion in Winter", "The African Queen")
- Glenn Close
- Meg Ryan (She gave an incredibly subtle by effective performance in "Prelude to a Kiss")
- Debra Winger
- Michelle Pfeiffer

Recital to be Held Tuesday

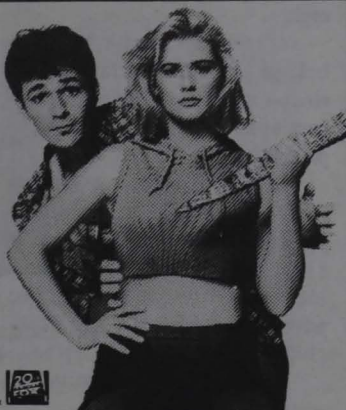

The Glenville State College music department will present a trumpet, horn, and trombone recital this coming Tuesday, March 8, at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium. Performing will be Harry Rich of GSC music faculty; Tonya Gray, a graduate of Glenville State College and Ohio University and an instrumental director at Stonewall Jackson Junior High School; and Joseph Patton, a graduate of Marshall University and instrumental music teacher at Poca Middle School. They will be assisted by John Walkup and Edward McKown, GSC music teachers.

The program will consist of music from the 18th to the 20th centuries. The composers represented are Guiseppi Tartini, Michael Haydn, Richard Strauss, Sachse, Arthur Pryor, Jean-Michel Defaye, and Arthur Frackenpohl.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Attention May Graduates

Please come by the bookstore and order your cap and gown now!

College policy dictates on page 54 of the College Catalog that "candidates completing graduation requirements in May must either attend commencement exercises, wearing the prescribed academic regalia, or notify the Vice President of Academic Affairs 30 days before commencement that they intend to pay a $40 fee and graduate in absentia."

Cap and gown orders must be submitted to the company no later than March 14 to avoid a $5 late fee per order which the bookstore will have to pass on to those students that don't order their cap and gown before they leave for spring break.

Cap and gown fee until March 11, will be $18. If you need a tassel only, it is $4.

After Friday, March 5, the fee will be $23 for a cap and gown.

AVOID THE LATE FEE AND THE CHANCE YOUR ORDER WON'T ARRIVE IN TIME--COME BY THE BOOKSTORE AND PLACE YOUR ORDER NOW!

Surveys Conflict On Jobs For Grads

by Jennifer Burgess
Special Correspondent
College Press Service

For new college graduates now may be the time to update their resumes and interview clothes--there are plenty of jobs out there for the taking.

But then again, perhaps you should make plans to move home and leech off mom and dad until the job outlook improves.

Are there jobs out there? It depends on whom you want to believe.

The bright news: an increase in hiring is projected in 1994 for new college graduates, according to the 23rd annual edition of Recruiting Trends, a Michigan State University report.

The bad news: the outlook is bleak and recent graduates are going to face stiff competition of jobs, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's Occupation Outlook Quarterly.

The more reassuring survey for graduates, which was researched by Michigan State, reported a 1.1 percent increase in hiring over the last year. This is the first increase projected in the past five years.

In addition to an increase in jobs, starting salaries are expected to be 0.4 percent higher than last year, Recruiting Trends said. The highest anticipated increases are for majors in chemistry, computer science, industrial, civil and mechanical engineering, mathematics and accounting.

According to the Research Trends survey, several fields are emerging with vast opportunities for employment.

Among the rising occupations reported by the surveyed companies are computer-related fields, business systems analysts, environmental engineers and scientists, health care and medical specialists, and communications and multi-media specialists.

The highest starting salaries for graduates with bachelor's degrees are chemical engineering majors at $40,300. The results are based on the responses of 4,600 employers in industry and government agencies.

When asked what advice the employers have for recent college graduates, the most frequent response was to have realistic expectations.

"Get in touch with reality; reduce your 'hat size,'" the Michigan State survey said. "New graduates cannot demonstrate that they are overqualified for a job until they try it on for size."

Employers also said that if you get a new job and it's not what you expected, don't worry. Most companies reported that they don't expect to hire a college graduate and have that person be with the company for a lifetime. There is so much change happening in the workplace that most companies cannot guarantee lifetime employment.

"The expectation for an individual to 'marry' an organization is no longer the norm," the survey said.

Employers recommend starting at an entry-level position. "Get started in an organization that offers a career ladder and produce outstanding results," the survey said. "Promotions will come later." If you have a job, that is.

"Employment projection for the 1990-2005 period indicates that the average annual openings in jobs requiring a degree will number fewer than during the 1984-1990 period," wrote economist Kristina J. Shelley in the Occupation Outlook Quarterly.

Work experience will become as important, if not more important than education for some jobs, according to Shelley, because of the growing number of bachelor degrees awarded each year that force graduates to compete for fewer jobs.

Is Mark Loudin Returning to TV?

by Amy Jo Rowan

When Public Relations Director Mark Loudin came to GSC in 1992 he was a celebrity on campus. For 10 years prior to this, he had worked as the WDTV Channel 5 news weatherman. Now, word is circulating that WDTV may want him to return. Will Loudin return to TV life, or will he remain at GSC?

Dan Strickland, WDTV's current weatherman, submitted his two week resignation Friday, February 25. Previously, WDTV General Manager Mike Smith had contacted Loudin to see if he would consider returning. However, Loudin pointed out, an official offer was not made until Monday, February 28.

Loudin reports he will not sacrifice his career at GSC to return to TV. However, he is willing to do both. By working part-time at WDTV, he would be able to manage both jobs. This would include doing only the weather at 5:30, 6, and 11 p.m. each weeknight.

"I thought I had left TV life behind," Loudin declared, "but since I left, I have missed the aspect of getting information out to people."

He also believes working part-time for WDTV would be a great promotion for the college. "If I take the job, I'll be on the road a lot, but it will be like a form of free advertisement for GSC," he concluded.

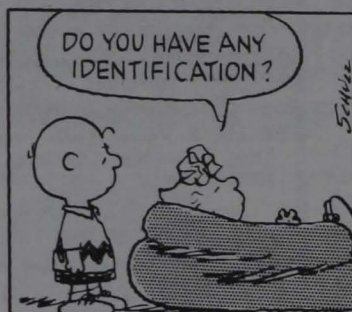

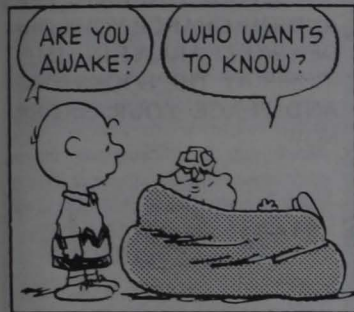

Reaching a decision in this matter will take time.

As Loudin stated, "Nothing is definite."

Further negotiations between Loudin and the WDTV general manager will take place throughout this week and next.

Bicycle Tour Offered to College Students as Healthy Alternative to Traditional Spring Break

Cycle America, organizer of America's largest annual coast-to-coast bicycle tour, has announced its first annual Spring Break Tour for students and anyone interested in an early-season cycling adventure. The 7-day cyclefest will be held in the old German town of Fredericksburg, Texas from March 13-19.

The hill country of south Texas offers some of America's finest countryside for cycling. To accommodate different abilities, cyclists can choose between a short or long loop ride each day. A "spider web" of farm-to-market country roads, beautiful hills covered with cedar and oak, and blooming flowers make for ideal cycling. Average daily high temperatures in the mid-70's with possibilities of 90's, should welcome cyclists from the snow-belt states with summertime warmth.

A large tent campground with showers will serve as base camp for the week. Many bed and breakfast inns and motels are also available for those desiring indoor accommodations. Clinics on cycling, social activities and dancing to the local beat are planned for the evening.

Instead of taking the traditional spring break vacation at a beach, students have an opportunity to participate in a healthy event and meet lots of people from across America who share a common lifestyle.

Cost of the Spring Break tour is $210 with a $40 discount for students. You will have to bring your own bicycle, tent and sleeping bag if camping. If interested in the Spring Break and Coast-to-Coast tours, call Cycle America at (800) 245-3263 and a brochure will be immediately sent to you.

Opportunity
International Summer School
The University of New Orleans will sponsor its 18th annual International Summer School in Innsbruck, Austria during the summer of 1994. Over 250 U.S. and European students as well as some 30 faculty/staff members will experience life and learning in the magnificent setting of the towering Tirolean Alps in the "Heart of Central Europe".

Participants can earn up to ten semester hours of credit (fully transferable according to the usual rules), selecting from over 50 courses offered in a wide variety of subject areas. Courses focus primarily on the cultural, historical, social, political, business, and economic issues of U.S./European relations and address the theme Democracy in Europe: Problems and Prospects. All instruction is in English, with field trips and European guest lectures as integral parts of the academic program. In addition to distinguished figures from the U.S. and Austria, the faculty is comprised of professors from the Universities of New Orleans, Florida, Georgia and Vienna. The UNO-Innsbruck International Summer School will convene with gala opening ceremonies on the 3rd of July and will end August 13, 1994. For those who wish to enrich their European experience further, UNO offers a pre-study credit program in Northern Italy, as well as an educational tour through Western Europe.

The UNO-Innsbruck International Summer School is a wonderful opportunity for students to travel, learn, and earn semester credit hours in a rich and beautiful European setting, alive with dramatic current events.

For a full color brochure and course descriptions write: UNO-Innsbruck-1994, International Study Programs, Box 1315, University of New Orleans, New Orleans, LA 70148.

Wanted

People with talent to perform in a variety show.

Do you know you have talent and just never had the nerve to attempt to display it, or never had the opportunity to get the exposure and attention you need? Perhaps there is a stand-up comic in each of you, just dying to get out. Here's your chance!

We want this show to encompass every facet of entertainment and show business. So, can you sing, dance, act, do impressions, magic, play any musical instrument or anything else that would hold the attention of an audience?

We understand that there is a tremendous amount of talent at Glenville State and we hope they all come out and find their place in the line-up. It will be great fun. We cannot promise there will be talent scouts lurking in the audience, but we will, at least, get your talent show-cased and off to a running start.

The show will be presented on campus in late April, coordinated and MC'd by a prominent anchor person from one of Clarksburg's TV stations.

Auditions and rehearsals start in March. Call 462-7057 and let us know now if we can count on you.

All proceeds go to the Gilmer County Volunteer Fire Department.

Residence Hall Closing Procedure

The residence halls will be closed on Friday, March 11, 1994 at 5 p.m. and will re-open on Sunday, March 20, 1994 at 12 noon. Lunch (noon meal) will be the last meal served on Friday, March 11, 1994. Dinner (evening meal) will be the first meal served on Sunday, March 20, 1994. Classes begin on Monday, March 21st.

Check-Out Procedure

Before you leave the residence hall for the break, please be sure:

1. You have unplugged everything in your room (clocks, stereos, etc.).
2. You have turned out all lights.
3. Your curtains and windows are closed.
4. Your door is locked (and windows, also). Please note that the college is not responsible for anything stolen from your room. We will be checking your rooms to see that you have complied with the above requests.
5. Turn in room key to Scott Wing office. Pick up key at office upon return to campus at Scott Wing office.
