Local High School Artists Display Work in Gallery

by April Ludle

The Glenville State art department is presenting the 17th Annual Scholastic Art Exhibition. The exhibition is being held from now to April 8. The exhibition will be displayed in the art gallery of the Fine Arts Building. All art displays are works completed by high school students from all over West Virginia.

The high schools participating are allowed eight entries. Out of these eight, there are to be five or more entries which should be senior and junior artwork. Due to the increase in entries and space available, the department finds it necessary to pre-select what will be hung for the final jurying for awards. However Mr. George Harper, administer of the exhibit, commented, "Due to past weather the entries were weak at first, but we are now on track."

This year's show has 78 students from 13 high schools submitting 91 pieces of work to be juried by Lotus MacDowell, artist and owner of the gallery and framing shop, Artworks, located at Eastpointe on the Bridgeport Hill in Clarksburg. She will be on campus to judge the show Thursday, March 24.

The categories in the art show include: drawing, which can be in pencil, charcoal, ink, transparent wash and opaque wash; painting, which include: tempera, oil, watercolor, acrylic and pastel; printmaking, which include: linoleum, callograph, wood block, multi-color and lithographic-paper; sculpture, which include: terra cotta, wire, plaster, wood and stone; crafts, which include: ceramics-pottery-glass-tile design, weaving, basketmaking and lapidary and jewelry casting; photography, which include: black and white, color, and mixed media, which include: 2-dimensional and 3-dimensional.

There will be four two-year tuition-free scholarships to study art at Glenville State College given to four graduating seniors participating in the exhibit. These students must maintain a 3.0 GPA in their high school grades and intend to enroll as art majors in Glenville State College. Merit awards will be presented in all media categories.

Awards will be blue ribbons and monetary value or gift certificates. A number of honorable men-

Clinton Calls for College Student Loan Investigation

by Angie Meadows and the National Student News Service

In a controversial move to wipe out billions of dollars in bad student loans, the Clinton administration last week called for a U.S. Department of Education investigation into colleges and trade schools administering federal aid programs.

Department of Education officials estimate that the government has wasted some $20 billion in lost student loans since 1980.

Many college administrators are upset by the proposed program, which if enacted would require reviews of 4,400 of 7,800 schools that manage federal financial aid. Some administrators see that proposal as an excessive intrusion, especially for those schools already complying with the federal criteria.

Mr. August Kafer, Glenville State College financial aid administrator, stated, "Many audits take place in the financial aid department. These audits may be a hassle, but I look forward to them. It enables me to see if we are doing anything wrong in the process."

tion ribbons will also be presented.

The awards ceremony will be April 8, at 1 p.m., when schools participating are invited to come view the works and take part in the ceremony.

While here, the students and teachers will tour GSC.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. weekdays, and one hour before any scheduled performance in the Fine Arts Building. Harper encourages all to attend and see the fine work displayed by West Virginia's talented young artists. "The 17th Annual Scholastic Art Exhibition is alive and well with many interesting examples of the talents of our Central West Virginia high school students. Come by, you won't be disappointed," Mr. Harper added.

Amy Huie, financial aid counselor for California State University--Hayward, said that the new program will result in inconveniences for those schools in compliance with the loan program.

"Suddenly, there is a whole new set of regulations that we have to go through that are used to catch other schools," Huie said.

The new regulations would establish state review agencies to monitor the rates of loan defaults. The average default rate for all institutions is 20 percent. Under the new proposal, institutions that have 25 percent default rates in their loan programs could be barred from providing their students with government-subsidized loans.

GSC's default rate has been up and down over the past five years. In 1989 the rate was at its highest in five years at 16.1 percent. The most recent report was the 1993 default rate, at which time the school was at 12.3 percent. The percents which are reported in a given year are from two years past, so the 1993 report indicates the rate for 1991.

The Department of Education estimates a 35 percent default rate at trade schools, compared to just seven percent at four-year colleges. Many administrators argue that the new program will unfairly burden four-year colleges for the problems incurred by trade schools.

Reviews will be conducted by state agencies if schools and colleges reach any one of 11 criteria set out by the Department of Education, including tardiness in a school's submission of audits, or large fluctuations of federal aid at any given institution.

"We may not meet the criteria, because of how the state has contracted our audits. At this time our office is audited every other year," stated Kafer.

Kafer continued, "We have a good program, but there is always a chance. I have expressed concern to the state agency about the way our audits are set up."

There is a state-run program, State Post Secondary Review Entity (SPRE), similar to Clinton's, to be enacted in West Virginia. The central office will look at schools with high default rates that meet the criteria set forth by the state.

COLLEGE LIFE

Celebrate Women's History Month

The Non-Traditional Viewpoint

by J. B. Parker

The recent Spring Break was anticipated as a catch-up period for all the work I had put off during the first half of the semester. Well, the best laid plans! Why is it that we make such grandiose plans only to fall short of our own expectations? But I guess we are conditioned to set our goals high. There is a saying, "shoot for the stars and you might hit the moon." God I hate breaks. While we are on the subject of falling short of expectations, did you know Oliver North is running for the United States Senate?

The political process is already corrupt. This is an off-year election, which is why the West Virginia Legislature voted themselves a gigantic pay raise, so voter turn-out will be small. The governor has no political concerns, he cannot be re-elected to his position. Therefore, he signed it into law.

So while we suffer through these bleak economic times we can rest easy. West Virginia will have the best legislature money can buy. This is of little change, with respect to past legislatures, with one key exception. In the past, legislators have been bought by special-interest money, now the legislators are being bought with taxpayer funds at the expense of key government programs, one quickly comes to mind, West Virginia's college's.

How can we correct this tyrannical grip that the legislature has on us? To revive a phrase from the past, "Throw the bums out." West Virginians have suffered through numerous scandals at all levels of state government. Why shouldn't the "state government" expect us to fall in line on this latest fiasco? Because we are tired of all the wasted government money, time, and people.

I implore all those eligible to vote to do so. Voting is a harmless process that takes fifteen minutes to do. Surely we can spare fifteen minutes to express our opinions in the voters booth. If you are not registered, do so. The May Primary is soon approaching and you can register until April 11, 1994. The overthrow of the current political policies has to come from you.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

This year Concerned Citizens of West Virginia backed an Initiative/Referendum Bill and a Referendum Only Resolution in the Senate and House, plus a third Resolution--Initiative, Referendum and Recall in the House. All three bills, in both houses, got thumbs down again!

Yet, to our amazement we hear the legislators suggest that the citizens should have the privilege of referendum on at least five issues: school building funds, riverboat gambling, video lottery, death penalty, and the Homestead Act.

Why? This being an election year, they don't possess the courage to vote for or against the issue.

We will have records of all roll call votes. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for a copy to: Concerned Citizens of West Virginia, 101 Laurel Ridge, Scott Depot, WV 25560.

Scratching The Surface

by Lisa Hayes

I read the other day where my generation, once called "Generation X," has been renamed, the "Baby Busters." The age limits of our generation differ depending on who is stereotyping, but those include have ranged from 20 years old to over 30.

"Baby Busters" have been accused of having no work ethic and no sense of responsibility. We have been compared to the Baby Boomer because we are disillusioned in our world, but in contrast, Baby Boomer felt they could fix the world, but Baby Busters feel the world is too far gone to be fixed. We have been called the "me" generation and have been accused of not fitting into society well.

It must be easy for sociologists to survey and stereotype a generation. The hard part for them it seems is acknowledging the legitimacy of our generation's attitude, and placing blame where it belongs. Baby Busters are reacting to what they have seen in the world. Blame belongs to those who remain blind.

My father has always had work ethics. Often, his own personal ethics were higher than those he worked with, so he opened his own business. I have known him to work ten hours every day, seven days a week, and be on call 24 hours a day. His social security and the social security of all older people is the main base of our economy today. It has taken care of our entire financial world. Will social security take care of my parents when they retire? Barely.

Many people with great work ethics have been laid off or are unemployed due to corporate cutbacks. Our generation has seen homeless people, high unemployment, and still sees limited opportunity. We have watched our parents bust their butts for every penny, only to find that penny pinching was merely training for living on social security. The "work ethic" we see that pays off consists of kissing up, playing politics and saying what people want to hear. Maybe we have a work ethic, it's just not the one society thinks we should have.

They say we have no sense of responsibility....Good God! Who is responsible for the hole on our ozone? Who was made responsible for Iran Contra? Who was held responsible for Waco, Texas? Responsibility is more than admitting fault; it also includes paying restitution, fixing or compensating for what has been done. Our generation is being held responsible for the aftermath of those who have gone before us.

We also have every right to be disillusioned. Our generation is the first that will be unable to meet or surpass our parent's standards of living because of the economy. Our generation is stepping out of college as the nation's capitol city declares bankruptcy. We are the first to be faced with AIDS, the highest cancer rate, one of the lowest employment rates, and our parents had the highest divorce rates. This is how the world has been presented to this generation. Without jobs, experience, respect, and in debt (on an average) $14,000 upon graduation, what power does our generation have to fix this mess?

Win a FREE Do!

In celebration of Women's History Month, The Mercury is announcing the "Spring Conditioning Essay Contest" sponsored by The Mercury and Regis Hairstylists. ## New Scholarship Award for WV Business Majors

The Northern West Virginia chapter of the National Contract Management Association (NCMA) is announcing its scholarship program kick-off this month.

The program is directed toward undergraduate students in their junior or senior year who have completed, or plan to complete, course work in areas such as business law, accounting, logistics, production control, and/or financial management.

The basic criteria to qualify for consideration under the scholarship program is as follows: 1) Student must be in his/her junior or senior year; 2) Student must complete an NCMA scholarship application; 3) Student must prepare a minimum 1000-word essay presenting student's views relevant to procurement as a major factor in business.

The purpose of this scholarship program is to create interest in the contract management/procurement field. In this regard, it is our Chapter's aim to encourage not only student interest in the field by providing NCMA funds for relevant educational purposes but also the college's involvement by motivating them to include specific courses on contract management and procurement in the business curriculum.

Two thousand dollars in scholarship awards will be made. Applications (pages one through four only) and essays must be received at the address below by March 31, 1994. Winners will be announced in early May and the scholarships will be presented at the annual "Teaming to Win Conference" May 20, 1994 at the Lakeview Resort and Conference Center in Morgantown.

We hope by sponsoring this scholarship program we will encourage young men and women to pursue a challenging and promising career in contracting or a related field. Possible career opportunities for students in the procurement field are available in government and private sector businesses as contract administrators, purchasing specialists, purchasing agents, and subcontract administrators, to name a few.

For additional information contact: D. Scott McVicker, EG&G Technical Services of West Virginia, Morgantown Energy Technology Center, P.O. Box 880, Morgantown, WV 26507-0880, or call (304) 291-4343.

'Tech Prep' Possible for NCC Rising Enrollment

by Susan Hutchinson

With the spring semester, came another record-breaking enrollment at the Nicholas County Center. The total enrollment for the spring 1994 is 715 students, of which 323 are enrolled full-time.

Presently, joint committees are working hard to accommodate the needs of the rising number of students, and to join forces with expanding communities, by continuing to develop the existing programs offered and analyzing the possible addition of new programs. One such program being considered by the NCC committees is the "Tech Prep" program.

The program is primarily used as a vocational high school program. The "Tech Prep" program is considered the "wave of the future" and is currently being implemented across the nation as a federally funded program.

Two years in length, the program is designed to meet the emphasis of the technical needs in the changing job market by preparing students for technician-level occupations. The program also allows college-level instructors to concentrate on advanced skills.

Two other benefits of the program are that the program seems to decrease the number of high school

—News In A Minute—

by Dave Trippett

■ Hopes of an agreement between the two Korean governments to ban nuclear weapons from their soil practically vanished Saturday. In a meeting sanctioned by the United Nations, Park Young Su, the North Korean delegate, stormed out 55 minutes after deliberations. He was quoted as saying "Seoul," the South Korean capitol, "will turn into a sea of fire" and "war is unavoidable."

■ With all of the budget cutbacks and mandatory decreases in manpower in the U.S. military, two unit commanders have come forward in the recent past to voice their opinions on readiness. The Commanders of the Air Force's Military Airlift Command and Army Reserve have stated that they "could not support" an operation the size of Desert Storm at this time.

■ West Virginia Governor Gaston Caperton guaranteed this past weekend he "would not veto" the bill giving state legislators a 133 percent pay raise. State representatives will now receive $15,000, plus a food and housing allowance, for serving the residents for 60 days. Other members of the state government getting raises include the Attorney General at a 50 percent increase and Supreme Court Justices at 18 percent. The governor's office will receive a 25 percent raise at the next term.

■ Thunderbird driver Ernie Irvan piloted his Havoline Ford to the checkered flag in the Purolator 500 at the Atlanta Motor Speedway. Irvan now sits atop the Winston Cup points list and Ford leads the Manufacturer's Cup race three-to-one over Chevrolet.

■ Once an NBA superstar leading the Chicago Bulls to three consecutive Championship titles, Michael Jordan proved he was not so super on the baseball field as he was sent by the Chicago White Sox to the "A" minor leagues Monday.

■ Tonya Harding was forced to pay over $150,000 in fines and agree to a psychiatric evaluation for her connection in the attack on fellow figure skater Nancy Kerrigan. Harding has also lost her amateur skating privileges and is no longer a member of the United States Figure Skating Association.

Faculty Spotlight--

Gayle Burkowski

by Melissa Rigglesman

After several years of teaching in the public school system, Gayle Burkowski returned to college--but this time to teach.

As a part of the English Department, Burkowski teaches several classes in this field including: writing, composition 101 and 102, introduction to literature, American literature, children's literature, and developmental writing. She is also a co-sponsor, along with Mrs. Wemm, of the Forensics Club. The club deals with speech, debates, and dramatic interpretation of poetry. The club has participated in competitions in Marietta, Ohio and Fairmont, WV.

Mrs. Burkowski graduated from Glassboro State University with a degree in English education and then received her masters at West Virginia University, also in English education. Burkowski taught at Braxton County High School for seven years. She used to live on a farm in Braxton County, then moved to Glenville. Mrs. Burkowski and her family have lived in Glenville for three years. She began teaching at Glenville State College in 1989.

Mrs. Burkowski is currently working toward a Ph.D. in linguistics and rhetoric as opposed to literature at Indiana University in Indiana, Pennsylvania. Mrs. Burkowski stated, "To receive my Ph.D., I had to study classes divided into peer groups with computers and compose a thesis paper on the subject. I worked on the thesis paper for three summers. I

will receive my Ph.D. in December, 1994."

Mrs. Burkowski's husband, Robert, is a teacher at Braxton County Middle School and also teaches night classes in English for GSC. She has four children, Richard, a freshman at GSC, and Ellen, Robin, and Roger, who all attend Gilmer County High School. Mrs. Burkowski says, "My hobbies are playing Bridge and tennis, along with aerobic walking two to three times a week."

News from the Careers Office

by Brenda Peyser

The Careers Office has information on several local employment opportunities. If you are interested in applying for any of these, please see Brenda Peyser in the Careers Office.

Employment Opportunity: Pizza Hut wants to hire management trainees. Applicants need good management and people skills and must be able to travel within their region. The salary range is $14,000 to $18,000 and there is a bonus opportunity of $10,000. Pizza Hut also offers good benefits.

Internships: If you are interested in one of these internships, we can arrange them to begin now, or for the fall semester.

Monongahela Power Co. is looking for interns for two departments. The first internship is available in the Treasury/Comptroller's Office and is of special interest to accounting majors.

The Legal Department is searching for the second intern. This internship is of interest to a secretarial science major who has an interest in the area of law. Both internships with Monongahela Power are in the Fairmont office and are unpaid.

West Virginia Public Radio has an internship available in its Business Office. Duties would include typing, filing, and computer work. The internship is in Charleston and is unpaid.

If you have any questions, or just want to see what's out there in the job market, stop by the Career Office and see Brenda Peyser today!

Wesley Foundation--

A Good Place To Go

by Mark Starcher

The Wesley Foundation was organized with the idea that college students are a "particular segment" of the population. The church can minister to these students in a non-traditional way the local church can't. The foundation was started in the mid 60's when campus ministry was prominent.

Unlike local churches, the foundation doesn't raise its own financial support. Any money the foundation acquires is from United Methodist Churches and the United Methodist Conference.

The Wesley Foundation is organized by a Board of Directors and "Terminators" (a group of students who want to terminate student indifference to God). The "Terminators," according to Mike Amory, director of the Wesley Foundation, are, "taking ownership of the planning of activities. Also one of the members, Marvin Prevost, writes the articles for The Mercury."

Some of the services provided by the foundation for college students are Tuesdays from 12 p.m.-1:15 p.m. They serve a free lunch and then have about 30 minutes of nondenominational devotion. Amory stated, "It is not the notion that the food is rich or rare, but the idea that kids can get together and have a lunch together in a Christian atmosphere and not have to be ashamed of the fact they are Christians and suffer harassment because of it."

Thursday night is the major night of activity. Amory commented, "We try to keep the students out of the local bars." Starting at 7:30 p.m. they watch movies and serve free popcorn and sodas, this goes on until after 11 p.m. They try to rotate between movies and games every other Thursday. Some of the games played are Monopoly, chess, checkers, backgammon, and Nintendo.

There is a game room at the foundation open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday. The game room houses pool tables, table tennis, and video games available for student use. There is a small cost for renting the needed equipment.

In the near future, the foundation plans to hold an overnighter. This will be called the "Harrison Ford Weekend" because they plan to show the "Star Wars" trilogy and the "Indiana Jones" trilogy. The weekend will conclude with worship service Sunday morning.

The main service Amory provides to the college is counseling. He has counseled victims of rape and incest, people with poor self-esteem, and also people with spiritual problems. If anyone ever has a problem or just needs a friend to talk to in confidence, his door is always open.

The Wesley Foundation has been host to the American Red Cross during floods and snow storms. Just this past winter, the foundation housed people whose pipes had frozen or couldn't get back to their homes. The foundation is also the sight of the blood drive for Gilmer County.

The Wesley Foundation is a friendly, active, wholesome facility serving students on campus. It is a place for fellowship and fun.

Golfers Place Second at Elon

by Sean Davis

The GSC golf team returned home from Burlington, NC following their second place finish at the Max Ward Invitational, sponsored by Elon College.

The Pioneers placed second out of a 23 team field, behind USC-Aiken, an NCAA Division II school. USC-Aiken as a team shot a 589, GSC shot a 599, and the third place finisher was Gardner-Webb, who shot a combined 601 score.

Individually, GSC's Michael

Barrett finished second overall in the invitational as he lost in a play-off. He had a two day total 74-73 for a 147. Gary O'Flaherty shot a 79 on the first day, then on day two shot a 69 for a 148, which placed him in a tie for third.

Other finishers included Vance Fitzsimmons who shot a 79-75 for a 154 total, John Moran, who finished with a 80-75 for a 155 total, and Colin Cassidy rounded out the field with a 75-82 for a 157 total.

According to Head Golf

Coach Tim Carney, "We had a great second day, we played real well for the tournament."

Next up for the Pioneers will be their own tournament, as they will host the Pioneer Invitational today and Friday. Today they play at the Oxbow Golf Club in Belpre, Ohio. For the second day of the tournament, they will play at the Woodridge Plantation at Mineral Wells.

The Pioneers are the defending champions for the Pioneer Invitational tournament.

Michael Barrett: Glenville's All-American

by Cindy Skiles

Among Glenville State College's excellent golf team is a talented two-time All-American--Michael Barrett.

Barrett began playing golf in his home of Mitchelstown, Ireland at about the age of 14, at the encouragement of his uncle, Dave.

A former Glenville State College golfer Patrick Gerhart turned Barrett on to Glenville and Coach Carney. This started "the pipeline of Irish players at GSC."

Barrett finished second at the Elon, North Carolina tournament with a 74 on the first day and a 73 on the second. The team itself finished second in both tournaments, earning the rank of second in the NAIA poll.

Last year's season ended with Glenville State College tied for second place nationally. This was the highest finish ever in GSC history. Individually Barrett tied for fourth in the national tournament.

Being a team-oriented player, Barrett states the team goals are "to win the state championship and finish in the top three at nationals in Tulsa, Oklahoma."

Veteran Colin Cassidy and all the new players, including John Moran and Gary O'Flaherty, will be helping to work toward these goals. Barrett states that ultimately, "The team would not be successful without Coach Carney and his fund-raising abilities."

Barrett thinks a problem surrounding the golf program at GSC is the lack of support it receives. "It is a forgotten sport at Glenville and it has been, by far, the most successful in the last 15 years." Also he stated, "We don't get enough recognition as a team."

Barrett's goals in golf are to win states, not to finish out of the top three individually in the remaining tournaments, and to place in the top five at nationals.

Personally, he just wants to "graduate and be happy in life." He is unsure about whether he wants to remain in the states after graduation or return home to Ireland.

Michael Barrett is the son of Michael Sr. and Mary Barrett. He is 21 years old, a junior, and majoring in marketing. His brother John formerly attended Glenville and was the kicker for the Pioneer football team.

Volleyball Recruits Announced

by Sean Davis

Now that spring is on its way, coaches in all sports all across the country are now in the recruiting war, in preparation for the upcoming seasons.

Here at GSC, Head Volleyball Coach Kenny Osbourne has been busy signing some talented players to fill the squad next year. To date he has signed four players, and looks to sign one to two more players soon.

Among the four recruits who have been signed is Melanie Headley, a hitter from Ritchie County. She was named to the First Team All-Little Kanawha Conference and was named to the First Team All-Star Squad as a junior. She will play in the North-South All-Star game Saturday.

From Wirt County, hitter Becky Cheuvront was recently inked with the blue and white. She was also on the All-LKC First Team and took the Lady Tigers to the state tournament this past season.

From Parkersburg Catholic High School, hitter Cheryl Stout has signed with the Lady Pioneers. She is an all-round athlete as she was a two-time all state volleyball player and a three-time all state basketball player for the Parkersburg Catholic Crusaders.

The fourth member of the signers is setter Angela Baker from Tyler Consolidated in Tyler County. This past season she was named to the All-Ohio Valley Athletic Conference First Team.

Head Coach Kenny Osbourne is very happy with the recruits who have been signed so far, commenting "They will definitely help us next year and, we are very happy with all of them choosing to play for the GSC Lady Pioneers."

Community Spotlight--

Crafters in the Glen

by Melissa Riggleman

Are you interested in crafts? On 115 East main Street there is a craft store entitled Crafters in the Glen. The store is a cooperative, owned by members of a group who pay dues and live in West Virginia. The store is open six days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

All people who work at the store are non-paid volunteers. Most members of the cooperative make the crafts the store sells. The crafters price their own materials. Crafters' manager is Ola Boggs, and assistant managers are Eugene Brera, Dot Jamison, Carrie Fortuna, Robyn Haider, and Carol Ross.

The store sells all kinds of West Virginia arts and crafts. Volunteer Leona Beall stated, "We have quality crafts, a great variety of items and our prices are very competitive to other places in the state. The store is always looking for new crafts people and artisans in West Virginia. We welcome browsers."

Crafters in the Glen has been in operation since March 16, 1992. The store has wonderful crafts and is doing better everyday. Take advantage of this craft store. People are welcome to come in and browse.

Continuing Education Meeting Community Needs

by Amy Jo Rowan

Community service is people helping to improve their town's environment. The GSC department of continuing education provides such service.

The department is directed by Dr. Duke Talbott. Its purpose is to provide classes and activities aimed toward the needs and interests of area residents. These programs are sponsored in Glenville and surrounding counties.

Offering GSC extension classes is the department's greatest service. They are held in Lewis, Braxton, Clay, and Calhoun counties.

Students primarily obtain general studies credits for such classes. However, some upper division courses are offered.

Dr. Talbott explained, "The extension classes are designed to meet the needs of the community, especially those who are not able to travel to the Glenville campus."

Although, not all courses offered through the extension are for college credit. They also provide training classes to prepare students for their chosen careers.

Continuing education is designed to serve people of all ages. It organized Elder Hostel, a learning program for people over 60. This program receives participants from all over the United States. For one week, they participate in a liberal arts course taught by a GSC faculty member.

In addition, they sponsor the Children's College during the summer months. These classes provide children with a cultural and enjoyable learning experience.

Throughout the year continuing education holds numerous seminars and classes for different age groups and organizations.

Gymnastics, computer courses, and lessons in different forms of art work are only a few of the programs they offer. They also conduct training seminars for various businesses. These have included keyboarding classes for private industries and police officer training seminars.

Dr. Talbott concluded, "Our goal is to reach out to the community as much as we can."

What's Your Oscar IQ?

March is Academy Awards month, which brings out the best and worst in Hollywood. The awards were televised Monday's and in celebration of this, we bring you a trivia quiz. We saw a lot of over-long acceptance speeches and weird dresses.

Now, put your Oscar know-how to the test!

Best Actresses Section

- Who tied for Best Actress in 1969 for their films "The Lion in Winter" and "Funny Girl"?
- Who won a 1978 Oscar for playing an actress who loses an Oscar in "California Suite"?
- Who won the 1983 Best Supporting Actress Oscar for her portrayal of a man in "The Year of Living Dangerously"?
- Which of these five nominated actresses was the Best Actress Oscar winner for 1986?
A. Sigourney Weaver for "Aliens"
B. Jane Fonda for "The Morning After"
C. Marlee Matlin for "Children of a Lesser God"
D. Sissy Spacek for "Crimes of the Heart"
E. Kathleen Turner for "Peggy Sue Got Married"

Best Actors Section

- The first actor to win an Oscar posthumously, for "Network."
- Who said of Oscar in 1979, "We're both a little weather-beaten but we're still here and plan to be around a whole lot longer," and then died two months later?
- Which two actors refused their Best Actor Oscars in the early seventies?

Matching:

Match the Best Actor with the movie for which he was awarded:

- William Holden A. "Save the Tiger"
- Jack Lemmon B. "Harry and Tonto"
- Robert Duvall C. "Charly"
- Art Carney D. "Stalag"
- Cliff Robertson E. "Tender Mercies"

Best Pictures Section

- What 1985 film was the second in history to receive eleven nominations but not win a single one?

- "Prizzi's Honor"
- "Witness"
- "The Color Purple"

- Which film lost the contest for Best Picture?

- "Citizen Kane"
- "You Can't Take It with You"
- "Tom Jones"

- Only film not nominated for Best Picture in 1960?

- "Elmer Gantry"
- "Inherit the Wind"
- "Sons and Lovers"

Bonus Question 1. Which studio head won more Oscars than any other single person (32)?

Bonus Question 2. What delayed the 1981 Oscar ceremony for 24 hours?

Scoring: 1 pt. for each correct answer; 2.5 pts. for each bonus question. 12-20 Points: The envelope please...and the winner is (your name here). "I'd like to thank the Academy..." 8-11 Points: Nominated, but not a winner. Practice phony smile; "I'm deeply honored just to be nominated." 5-7 Points: Though you got "Two thumbs up--way up," you were snubbed by the Academy. You didn't play in Peoria. 0-4 Points: You are showbiz poison. Nobody in town will return your calls.

Answers:

- Katherine Hepburn and Barbara Streisand, respectively; 2) Maggie Smith; 3) Linda Hunt; 4) C; 5) Peter Finch; 6) John Wayne; 7) George C. Scott and Marlon Brando; 8) D; 9) A; 10) E; 11) B; 12) C; 13) C; 14) A; 15) B.

Bonus:

- Walt Disney; 2) The attempted assassination of President Ronald Reagan.

Woodwind Ensemble Performs to Packed House

by April Ludle

As everyone was preparing for Spring Break, the Woodwind Ensemble was busy with other worries.

Thursday, March 10, the GSC Woodwind Ensemble, under the direction of Philip Rossano, presented their Spring '94 concert.

The music was incredible and the members of the ensemble are even more incredible. The members of the ensemble are: Ann Bird, Sundie Boley, Lee Chambers, Clifford Cody Jr., Lori Crouter, Heather David, Darlene Evans, Lori Garvin, Della Greathouse, Jason Harris, Martina Hersom, Angela Hoover, Susan Hunter, Traci Lloyd, Elizabeth Marsh, Farley Price II, Ann Smith, Christa Webb and Jenora Wine.

The music selection for the performance included: "Proud Heritage," William P. Latham; "Saraband," Claude Debussy; "Concertino," Cecile Channing, solo: Della Greathouse; "Clarinet on the Town," Ralph Herman, solo: Heather Davis; "Ballade," Alfred Reed, solo: Ann Smith; "Prelude and Scherzo," Hohnanes Brahms and "Finale (Symphony No. 5)," Ludwig Van Beethoven.

The concert was a success and the crowd was pleased. It was a nice beginning to spring break, which was needed by everyone.

A Big Night for the Oscars

by David Graham

The big movie event has come and gone. The golden statuettes have been handed out and the thirst of anticipation satisfied. Whoopi Goldberg hosted the 66th Annual Academy Awards with great success March 21.

The big surprise of the evening came in a small package. Anna Pacquin, age 11, captured the Oscar for her film "The Piano" in the Best Actress category. (No, I'm not being PC, but until the Academy officially changes the word "actress" to "female actor" I shall stand with them. Sorry.)

No one film completely dominated the awards. "Schindler's List" took home seven awards, including the honor of Best Picture. The creative force behind the picture, Steven Spielberg, finally captured the long-time coming Oscar for Best Director. However, the two prizes for Best Actor and Best Actress went to two very different films.

Tom Hanks gave a very moving and elegant speech as he accepted his award for Best Actor for his work in the film "Philadelphia."

In the Best Actress competition, Holly Hunter won the hearts of the Academy voters as well as the Oscar itself for the challenging role she played in "The Piano."

Tommy Lee Jones took home the Best Supporting Actor trophy for his work in the chase film "The Fugitive."

Bruce Springsteen's "Streets of Philadelphia" allowed him to take home an Oscar for his first attempt at songwriting for a motion picture.

Also awarded were Deborah Kerr and Paul Newman, the recipients of the Jean Hersholt Award for outstanding careers in film.

Crouter Pursues Career in Performance

by April Ludle

Lori Crouter is a fourth year music education major. Her main field of study is voice, singing alto and soprano. Crouter will be doing her student teaching in the spring of 1995.

After graduating she would like to pursue a career in performance. If it doesn't work out she will be able to teach, or she has thought of going on to graduate school in music theater.

Crouter has been very active in the music and theater departments at GSC. Crouter was a member of Music Educators National Conference (MENC) for three years. Crouter also participates in marching band, concert band, concert choir, woodwind ensemble, and chamber singers. She has also performed with the jazz band, and will be singing with the percussion ensemble this April.

Crouter's performances with the theater department have included "Our Town", "A Streetcar Named Desire", "Steel Magnolias", "The Merchant of Venice", "Anything Goes", "Rehearsal for Murder", and various one act plays. She is also a member and president of Alpha Psi Omega.

Crouter enjoys acting and when asked if she planned to do more she responded, "I would like to try. I really don't know how I stand in the world. I've been real successful here. I would like to work in community theater." Crouter's biggest goal in life is to "perform in a big name place, even if it's only one time."

Some of Crouter's music talents include singing (of course), and playing flute, bassoon, alto saxophone, melaphone, and piano.

Three reasons why she picked GSC was because it was far away from home, inexpensive and has a small community. She feels she made the right decision. "I feel prepared to go out and teach. I've received a good education," commented Crouter. Crouter also replied, "I like the small community, but I feel isolated in Glenville. I feel I'll have a better chance in a bigger community."

Crouter is presently preparing for her senior recital set for April 17 at 3 p.m.

Crouter is from Indianapolis, Indiana. She graduated from Pike High School, population 2,500. While in high school she participated in choir, band, and performed in two plays and four musicals.

Life As a Commuter

by Monica Ann Null

Being a college student in today's society is not as easy as some tend to think it is. There are several conflicts that one must encounter as a student enrolled in a college or university.

The first and most obvious conflict is developing the amount of money necessary to pay for the cost of attending for one semester, or for a full year. If one is fortunate enough to qualify for special scholarships or grants, these may help tremendously. If no type of financial aid is awarded, this may be a very difficult task.

Once the money is accounted for and the tuition bill is paid in full, another problem arises. Where is the student to live during the school term?

For those students who live a few blocks or a few miles from a college campus, this is no real issue. The simple answer of walking or driving a few minutes to class each day applies.

But for those students who attend a college that is not so close to their homes, this is a popular question they must form an answer to. Do they decide to live in a dormitory on campus, or do they search for an apartment off campus to call their home?

At Glenville State College, the answer to this question has predominantly been to live off campus. According to the Office of Student Affairs at GSC, there are approximately 380 students living in the dorms for the Spring 1994 semester. This number does not even count for one-fourth of the total number of students enrolled at GSC for this term.

Out of 2,038 students total who go to the main campus of GSC, one half of them do not even live in the city limits of Glenville, WV. These students commute from areas surrounding the college.

Whether living with parents or with their own families, each student has a personal reason for staying at home instead of moving to Glenville for nine months of the year to attend college.

Some students feel it is convenient to live at home with their parents and drive the 20 or 30 miles each day and evening. Others find it to be an inconvenience and say it interferes with their study time, thus making college more difficult for them.

If commuting is such a hassle for these persons, then why do they continue to do it? One man commented it was not an issue of choice for him. He could not afford to pay the cost of a dorm room and he knew his family couldn't either. Although this student is receiving financial aid, it is only enough to cover his tuition bill each semester.

Lack of finances is not the only reason students choose to live at home and commute. According to one student living in Grantsville, WV, it is just easier to come home to her mom and dad each night and sleep in her own bed in her own room. "It is more private and personal than living in a dorm room, and the food is 10 times better than the cafeteria," she claims.

Another student said living at home is convenient for him as his mother does his laundry daily and fixes him dinner every evening after school. He says he wouldn't move to campus unless someone paid him to.

After making the decision to live at home, the commuter must face the task of developing a schedule that allows enough time to drive to the college in the morning and return home at a decent hour in the evening.

Scheduling is a difficult process itself. When one tries to develop a schedule of classes that are consistent, problems may arise. An hour or two hour break may be unavoidable. When a three hour or longer break exists, one must decide whether to go home and drive back for later classes, or hang around on campus and wait.

Most of the students I have spoken with stated they most likely will hang around campus to avoid "wasting time" by driving and "spending extra money" for gasoline. These students will either work on campus or hang out in the library or student center.

One might be surprised to find out commuters are also involved with campus activities. Some are participants in collegiate sports, members of the band or choir, or other school activities.

When I asked Michelle Jackson if it were difficult for her to be a member of the cheerleading squad at GSC and live in Grantsville, she replied, "Sometimes it poses a problem, because it seems I am at the college most of the day and then practice in the evening. I don't usually get home until eight or nine o'clock."

Michelle is not the only athlete commuting from Grantsville. A member of the track team also lives at home. Michelle Waggoner drives 27 miles each morning and night. She also works in the GSC library regularly, which occupies much of her time between classes and practices.

Michelle commented, "The one major problem I have with commuting and participating in this sport is the Sunday evening practices. It is inconvenient for me to drive 45 minutes to practice for about one hour, and then drive back home when I am done."

It is not uncommon for these commuting student's to hold regular or part-time jobs to support themselves. Although they may live in their parent's home, they must provide the money for all of their outside needs, such as gas money, lunch money, and upkeep for their vehicle.

The question of whether it is less expensive to live at home opposed to living on campus was asked to those I interviewed, and the majority claimed it was less expensive to remain off campus and at home. It was not just the dorms being too expensive, but also the option of renting a place off campus in Glenville.

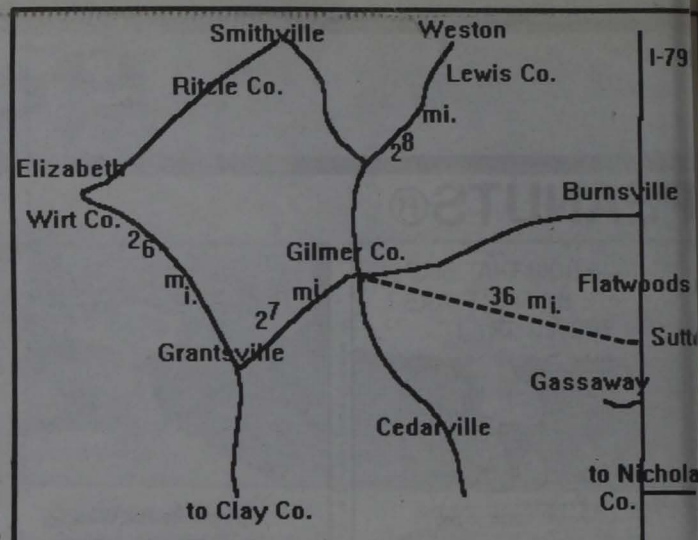

The claim one must have a roommate in order to be able to afford an apartment in a college town, may also be true in Glenville. Perhaps this lack of privacy is not required by commuters.

One commuter stated she would much rather help her parents pay bills than pay her own somewhere else. She said her living at home was not only an asset to her but to her parents as well.

Recently, a friend of mine moved into an apartment in Glenville after commuting for two years. When I asked him what made him find a place in Glenville, he replied, "I just felt it would be easier for me to live closer to the campus. Commuting is hard not only on me but my car too."

The issue of finding a place to park is another problem a commuter must face each and every school morning. If a student does not have a class until nine o'clock in the morning, a spot on campus may be impossible to locate. This means the student may have to walk to campus from another lot.

There are many advantages and disadvantages of living at home and commuting. Each is entitled to his or her own preference. However, I have learned from experience, commuting is definitely not right for me. I would much rather pay the extra price for an apartment at the bottom of the campus hill, than to spend two hours of my day driving to school and home again.

For those of you who do commute, I must say that I do not envy you, but I wish you luck with your vehicles (especially during bad travelling weather), and with your studies. It is difficult enough for me to find time to complete my assignments and study for all of my classes...but I have it easy compared to a commuter!

In consideration if this entry is accepted, I hereby, for myself, heirs, executors, and administrators, waive and release any claims against the officials of the GSC Week Mountain Bike Race and Glenville State College. I also certify that I realize mountain biking is an inherently dangerous activity and that I am physically fit to compete in this event. I attest to the above with my signature.
